TASTING NOTE

Shows an intense red color with purple hints. An intense bouquet of Patagonic berries such as cassis, raspeberries and prunes combine with hints of mint on the nose. On the palate, the lush fruit continues, with sweet tannins and a velvety yet ageworthy structure.

VINEYARD

Located at 39.2° south latutide, Humberto Canale's vineyards are in the Upper Valley of the Rio Negro, the most prestigious of Patagonia's wine regions. Of alluvial origin, these soils were formed five million years ago from the effect of the glaciers that dominated much of the Patagonian region.

FOOD MATCHING

Partner with lamb, or rich stews to balance the fruit and structure of the wine. Also a good foil for hard, aged cheese such as parmesan.
