TASTING NOTE

Altaïr is a hugely impressive wine, with an enormously satisfying, velvety texture, and superb balance between juicy black cherry fruit character and fragrant oak. It clearly shows the winemaking genius of Gabriel Mustakis, since it is extremely satisfying to drink now, and yet has the structure and balance to reward long cellaring. It is made mostly from Cabernet Sauvignon, with small doses of Cabernet Franc, Carmenère, Petit Verdot and Syrah, depending on the vintage.

VINIFICATION

For the first 16 months of maturation, 70% of the wine matured in 225- and 300-litre French oak barrels, 25% in foudres and the remaining 5% in amphorae.. The types of ageing vessel were adapted to each variety and terroir. The final blend of the components was determined through tasting, and then married in foudre for a further six months before bottling.

FOOD MATCHING

Ideal with reat meat, beef and lamb.
